LAUGHTER.

As leap the crystal waters from the hills,
 With nodding flowers along the margins cool,
 To make the summer fresh and beautiful,
 So laughter runs along our life, and trills
 The melodies we love, the sweet "golden rule."
 The wise and good laugh most, and not the fool,
 Upon the empty heart no joy distills;
 Laughter is freedom, launch thyself away!
 Fly over the waves, where gales are fresh and free.
 For laughter is thy noblest self in play,
 As ripples of a stream that seeks the sea.
 Or billows breaking into rainbow spray,
 Thy heart's untrammeled art of melody.
 —Dwight Williams in Home Journal.

People Who Die Unnecessarily.

Many people die unnecessarily. Few people take proper care of themselves. Healthy people are prone to be careless, and so destroy their health. Youth and health place the individual in a sort of intoxication. The healthy young man is full of life, energy, ambition, hope, enthusiasm. He thinks he can do anything with his vigorous constitution, and he generally does about everything with it. He finds that a night of sleep recuperates him, and he imagines that sleep will always be the case. Instead of husbanding his forces, he wastes them. He is as extravagant with his health as another man may be with his money. He is living on his capital, and not on the returns from his investments.

Men and women ought not to die as young as they do. Our science has taught us that the lower animals attain to a number of years five times as great as the number of years that bring them to maturity, barring, of course, accident and disease. Man reaches maturity at the age of 25. Five times 25—125. The natural life of man ought to be 125 years, according to physiological laws. Of course, he must live in a climate that does not offer too great a resistance.—Physician in Boston Herald.

Dudes and Their Dogs.

Another fad of our gilded youths is to go about the streets with enormous dogs, presumably of rare breeds and great value, trotting at their heels. The contrast between the magnificent caninity of the dogs and the puny pusillanimity of their owners is amusing. I was in one of our uptown cafes the other night and saw two slim enter, each with a great dog after him, one a St. Bernard and the other a mastiff. The dogs eyed each other with surly look. The masters glared with haughty rivalry in their eyes. Suddenly the canines tackled each other furiously. Everybody jumped out of the way, and the poor boys were afraid to separate the brutes. It was an interesting situation, only broken by a cynical barkeeper, who came out and dashed some red pepper over the interlocking heads of the dog duellists. It was good sport while it lasted, not the less on account of the helpless and miserable appearance of the dudes who owned the dogs. —"Tattler" in New York Star.

An Effective Police System.

The police authorities of Russia boast that they know the whereabouts and disposition of every citizen of the empire every night, and it is through the devices that they get the most of their information. No more effective spy system could be organized. People must live in houses, and the law requires every house to have a doorman. No one can be so employed who does not belong to the arist, and the police control the arist. The tenant is therefore completely at the mercy of his servant, who, if so disposed, can send him to Siberia on a charge of treason any time he likes, and it requires little more than a doorman's testimony to obtain a "warrant" as a sentence to exile is called.—William E. Barker in Chicago News.

Two Sets of Banks.

Go into any regular savings bank, and on days when crowds of depositors are there you will see the best representatives of the mass of labor. Go into one of the down town commercial banks, and you will see, not the day laborer or mechanic, but the manufacturer and the merchant, or their clerks. The first set of banks is patronized by those who save little by little, and don't have big piles of money. The second set is used by those who, whether they actually own large fortunes or not, do, for the time, have big sums passing through their hands. These two kinds of banks have distinct species of patrons, and seldom does any one bank have many customers of more than its own particular kind.—New York Sun.

Birds That Are Missing.

Ten species of North American birds are named by Mr. E. M. Haeberle as missing. Of these, two—the great auk and the Labrador duck—are believed to have become extinct, while the following eight, through scarcity or dimness, were "lost" and are now being eagerly sought. The carolinian warbler, blue mountain warbler, small headed warbler, Cuvier's kinglet, Townsend's bunting, Brewster's linnet, Bachman's warbler and the Cincinnati warbler.—Arkansas Traveler.

Rather Costly Sport.

They were talking about bowling when Stormy Shinton Truss came up.
 "Talk about bowling," said Stormy, "I know the time in New York when it cost me $50 every time I rolled a ball."
 "How was that?" was asked.
 "Why, I used bottles of champagne for pins," replied Stormy, and the crowd dropped out of sight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Grizzly as a Speeder.

I once chased a lean grizzly for several miles, and it was all I could do to keep up with him upon a fleet horse. I man could not have run half as fast as he did. Indeed, I doubt if the fleetest pedestrian hunter could make his escape if pursued by an exasperated grizzly bear in any condition, unless he reached a tree or used his firearms effectively.—Brig. Gen. R. B. Marcy in Outing.

Not for the Middle Class.

The Russian government has decided not to heretofore grant commissions in the artillery and engineers to cadets who are not of noble family. Count Tolstoy, minister of the interior, has for some time systematically abstained from conferring posts in the civil service on applicants belonging to the middle, that is, unprivileged class.—Boston Budget.

A Change in Recreation.

(Grocery Store—Hard faced grocer and poor chow boy.)
 Grocer—I suppose you feel pretty tired, Tommy, after putting in the coal?
 Tommy—Yes, sir.
 Grocer—Well, if you want to have a little fun now, you can shovel the snow off the sidewalk.—Life.

Weekly Capital Journal.

The Cheapest Newspaper in Oregon!

THE BEST FAMILY NEWSPAPER IN MARION COUNTY.

Do you want a paper that you can with confidence take to your bedside as an intimate friend; a clean, fresh and vigorous exponent of the truth; a foe to any system that builds up colossal fortunes for the few at the expense of the many, or that reduces the farmer and laborer to servitude? A paper that will not descend to acrimonious personalities, to vituperation or abuse; but which depends on fair statement and reason for its weapons. A paper that dares treat its political foes with candor and courtesy. Devoted to the material growth and prosperity of Salem, of Marion county, and of the fertile and wide extended Willamette valley. Using every legitimate means to convince the prospective settler and business man of the advantages which, as residents, we all know full well exist; and, finally, a paper which recognizes the fact that the reduction in the price of weekly newspapers on this coast, has not kept pace with the reduction in the price of the great staples of commerce, and has boldly struck out forever from the stereotyped "terms" at the head of its columns, the lowest price ever charged for such a paper in Oregon, and has substituted therefor as low a price as was ever charged for such a paper in the world.

REFeree'S SALE.

STATE OF OREGON,) ss.
 COUNTY OF MARION,) ss.
 NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT BY virtue of a decree of partition and order of sale entered in the circuit court of the state of Oregon for Multnomah county, on the 15th day of June, 1887, and an amendatory decree thereto entered in said court on the Twentieth day of September, 1887,

In the partition suit of Amanda Flinn et al. vs. J. B. Smith et al., whereby it was ordered that the south east quarter of Salem, Marion county, Oregon, with the other real property belonging to the estate of John Smith, deceased, be sold. Now, therefore, by virtue of said decree and said amendment thereto, I, the undersigned, who was duly appointed by said court as referee to sell said real property, will on Tuesday, the 1st day of May, 1888, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., at the court house door, in Marion county, Oregon, sell the above described real estate at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in pursuance of said decree and amendment thereto.
